I have taught for fourteen years in a variety of settings, including mainstream and special needs schools. During this time I have developed a reputation for managing the most difficult classes and pupils. Consequently, I was asked to begin organising training courses for staff on managing children within the classroom environment. I'm currently managing a number of projects on engaging parents and behaviour school management at a selection of difficult schools in South Wales.

I have published the following articles and books:

- Quick, Easy and Effective Behaviour Management Ideas for the Classroom (Jessica Kingsley in 2009)
- Behaviour Management in Primary Schools: A Practical Handbook (Welsh Assembly Government)
- Articles for the Times Education Supplement on behaviour

What I can offer schools:

- Professional advice and support on behaviour management
- School INSET days on behaviour management
- Practical solutions for families and schools
- Free weekly behaviour management tips
- Quality courses from Early Years to KS2
- Resources for behaviour management
- Conference speaker and organiser
- Implementation of:
 - The 5 Step Behaviour Programme is an effective and structured approach designed to enable all school staff to effectively manage unwanted behaviour and positively reinforce good behaviour.
 - Family Values is a scheme which engages and empowers families to work in close collaboration with schools and organisations resulting in long term improvements in behaviour, communication and relationships.
 - Transition Group is designed to provide pupil's with challenging behaviour a focused programme to help develop social skills and coping strategies during less structured times throughout the school year such as the last few weeks of the summer term.
